The Nation's Prayer.

The following poem, written by a young lady of New York for a fast day service, first appeared in the New York Post, August 34, 1864. Its words seem prophetic, in view of the

- ing election of Gen. Grant as the next President " Father, to Thy throne ascending,
- List the Nation's prayer to Thee-With their hearts and voices blending,
- God-Grant-Victory! We have suffered, O our Father, In the great cause, Liberty ;
- Now we come to thee for succor-God-Grant-Victory : Vacant chairs are in our households, Vacunt hearts each day we see,
- That in anguish often whisper-God-Grant-Victory ! Father, never let base traiture
- In this land of brave and free, Rule o'er those whose hearts are saying God-Grant-Victory :
- Thus to Thee our prayer is rising-Thus we humbly come to Thee, Asking ther in broken accents-
- God-Grant-Victory ! Hat if Thou wouldst larger listen, We'll submit our all to Thee,
- Enowing that in his good pleasure God self Grant as Victory ! Then when this dread strife is over,
- And the day of peace we see, We shall keep our country's watchword-God and Grant and Victory ?"

An ancient rhyme divides female beauty into four orders, as follows: Long and tary,

Fair and fiolish, Durk and proud. Brown the other day, while looking at the Dy skeleton of a donkey, made a very natural quotation. "Ah," said he, "we are fearfully and conderfully made."

Bentianus .- Greeley says :- " Excess in play is n epidemic constantly spreading, and giving no gn of abatement. There are thousands in this rity (for instance) who spend more hours in the billiard room than they give to any useful work. Were billiards a healthful, muscular recreation, ike bowling, this excessive devotion to it-often unsensomble hours-would be culpable. But t is hardly an exercise; while the atmosphere of public bilitard room is often close and foul, rith a bar much handier than it need or should e. "That fine tree," said he, "was killed by a ingle worm." In answer to our inquiries we found that about wo years previously the tree was as healthy as by in the park, when a wood-worm, about three hes long, was observed to be forcing its way inder the bark of the trunk. It then caught the re of a naturalist who was staying here, and he marked, "Let that worm alone, and it will kill This seemed very improbable, but it as agreed that the black-headed worm should ot be disturbed. After a time it was discovered that the worm ad tunneled its way a considerable distance uner the bark. The next summer the leaves of the ee dropped off very early, and in the succeeding ear it was a dead, rotten thing, and the hole hade by the worm might be seen in the very eart of the once noble trunk. "Ah!" said one who was present, "let us arn a lesson from that single tree. How many once promised fair for usefulness in the orld and the church have been ruined by a sin-
